Allianz Risk Transfer AG, et al. v. Paramount Pictures Corporation,
No. 08-CV-10420 (KBF)

Dear Judge Forrest:

This firm, together with Kendall, Brill and Kleiger LLP, represents the defendant, Paramount Pictures Corporation ("Paramount") in this action. We write in response to plaintiffs' oral motion of this morning for leave to file a jury demand. As we stated on that call, we believe there is no basis for permitting plaintiffs to file such a demand; indeed, such a demand is expressly prohibited under the relevant transaction documents.

First, the Subscription Agreement pursuant to which plaintiffs acquired the Melrose LLC securities at issue in this case provides that investors like plaintiffs "EXPRESSLY WAIVE[] ANY RIGHT TO A TRIAL BY JURY IN ANY ACTION OR PROCEEDING TO ENFORCE OR DEFEND ANY RIGHTS UNDER THIS SUBSCRIPTION AGREEMENT OR THE SECURITIES AND AGREE[] THAT ANY SUCH ACTION OR PROCEEDING SHALL BE TRIED BEFORE A COURT AND NOT A JURY TRIAL.” E.g., Ex A hereto at 16 (emphasis original).

Thus, whether timely or not—and, made literally on the eve of trial, plaintiffs’ oral motion for a jury demand is entirely out of time—the Subscription Agreement should compel the denial of the motion for a jury demand. Given the broad nature of the waiver—i.e., plaintiffs’ waiver of “any right” in “any action” to enforce “any rights” with respect to the securities at issue—there can be no serious dispute that the waiver clause applies to plaintiffs’ suit against Paramount. E.g., Arrowgrass Master Fund Ltd. v. Bank of N.Y. Mellon, 965 N.Y.S.2d 473, 474-75 (App. Div. 1st Dep’t 2013) (holding that a broad release in a settlement agreement barred plaintiffs’ claims against a non-party to that agreement). As the First Department in Arrowgrass explained: “If plaintiffs had wished to limit their waiver of their challenge to that agreement, it would have been a simple matter to include language to that effect.” Id. at 474 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). So, too, here.

Indeed, plaintiffs have never contested that their conduct is governed by the terms of the Subscription Agreement. For instance, on Paramount’s motion for summary judgment, Paramount argued that the release language contained within the Subscription Agreement, which expressly released Paramount from any and all purported claims that the films at issue would be distributed in any particular matter, bars these claims. [ECF No. 86, at 24-26]. Whatever plaintiffs’ rejoinders to that argument (including that their claims do not concern “distribution,” when the very first page of their summary judgment opposition brief described the case as concerning “distribution”), plaintiffs never argued that they were not bound by the Subscription Agreement. [ECF No. 95, at 44-45]. They should not be heard to do so now.

Second, the record is clear that plaintiffs have waived their right to trial by jury because they have not “properly served and filed” a jury demand. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d). In response to the Court’s invitation, Plaintiffs have identified no such demand, because they never served one. Plaintiffs have served four complaints in this case. [ECF Nos. 1, 6, 27, 65.] Not one of them contains a request for a jury trial. Nor, pursuant to Rule 38(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, did plaintiffs serve Paramount with a written demand for a jury trial within 14 days of service of the last pleading directed to the issue. Here, the final such pleading was Paramount’s first answer, its Answer to the Second Amended Complaint [ECF No. 42], which was served on May 20, 2011. No jury trial demand followed. Subsequent amendment to the complaint, following Paramount’s answer, in no way revived plaintiffs’ waived jury trial rights. Tuff-N-Rumble Mgmt., Inc. v. Sugarhill Music Publ’g, Inc., 75 F. Supp. 2d 242, 245 (S.D.N.Y.1999).

Third, given this failure to file a demand, plaintiffs’ oral motion for a trial by jury, made earlier today pursuant to Rule 39(b), should be denied even apart from the contractual waiver contained in the Subscription Agreement. Plaintiffs have given no good cause for their belated assertion of their jury trial rights other than their own inadvertence, yet the Second Circuit has been clear that “inadvertence in failing to make a timely jury demand does not warrant a favorable exercise of discretion under Rule 39(b).” Westchester

Day School v. Village of Mamaroneck, 504 F.3d 338, 356 (2d Cir. 2007) (quoting Noonan v. Cunard S.S. Co., 375 F.2d 69, 70 (2d Cir. 1970) (Friendly, J.)). Indeed, “[g]ranting an untimely jury demand based on the mere inadvertence of counsel is reversible error.” United States v. Country Club Garden Owners Ass’n, 159 F.R.D. 400 (E.D.N.Y. 1995) (citing Cascone v. Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp., 702 F.3d 389, 392 (2d Cir. 1983)).

The Noonan rule is applied with particular force where a case, like this one, is filed in the first instance in federal court. New Generation Produce Corp. v. New York Supermarket, Inc., 2014 WL 1271156 at *2 (E.D.N.Y. March 26, 2014). In light of the “restrictive” approach to Rule 39(b) adopted by the Second Circuit, Evvtex Co. v. Hartley Cooper Assocs., Ltd. 1995 WL 322156 at *1 (S.D.N.Y. May 26, 1995), it is of no consequence that Paramount submitted proposed jury instructions on certain issues. Under the Circuit’s case law, that is simply irrelevant to the “rigid rule” adopted in Noonan for cases filed in federal court. Alvarado v. Santana-Lopez, 101 F.R.D. 367, 368 (S.D.N.Y. 1984).

Fourth, if, notwithstanding plaintiffs’ waiver, the Court determines to seat a jury, that jury should be instructed only on plaintiffs’ federal securities claim asserted under Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder. With respect to the two common-law claims in this case: the unjust enrichment claim is an equitable one for which no jury determination is appropriate. See Paramount’s Proposed Jury Instructions [ECF 116, at ii-iii (citing Ebin v. Kangadis Food Inc., 2013 WL 6504547, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 11, 2013) (“Unjust enrichment is an ‘equitable remedy’ . . .”); N.Y. Pattern Jury Instr. Comment to Civil 4:2 (“It should never be left for the jury to decide whether equitable considerations warrant a finding of unjust enrichment.”).]

With respect to plaintiffs’ second common-law claim, for fraud, the only remedy plaintiffs plead in their complaint is rescission. [ECF No. 65, at 33.] As Paramount argued in its motion for summary judgment (an argument unfortunately never discussed by Judge Griesa), because plaintiffs manifestly can obtain a remedy at law—indeed, they have propounded a damages expert who quantifies their alleged damages—rescission is inappropriate here. [ECF No. 86, at 43.] Plaintiffs, despite ample opportunity to do so, have never remedied this defect in their pleading. While this should compel summary judgment for Paramount on the common-law claim, at a minimum, the claim should be tried to the Court, and not a jury. See Paramount’s Proposed Jury Instructions [ECF 116, at iii (citing Rosewood Apartments Corp. v. Perpignano, 200 F. Supp. 2d 269, 272 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (“In order to obtain rescission, an equitable remedy, the party seeking it must show that it has no adequate remedy at law.”); Resnick v. Resnick, 763 F. Supp. 760, 768 (S.D.N.Y. 1991) (calling rescission a “purely equitable” remedy “for which there is no right to a trial by jury”).]

In short, plaintiffs' belated request for a jury trial should be denied.

We appreciate the Court's attention to this matter.

Respectfully submitted,
